ASSEMBLYWOMAN JOAN CHRISTENSEN
Chair

September 2005

Dear Colleagues:

This legislative year I was appointed to chair the Assembly's Legislative Commission on Skills Development and Career Education. I am very excited about the programs and information highlighted in the Commission's annual publication, Workforce Preparation Programs Catalog. Funded with state and federal monies and administered by fifteen of our State agencies, these programs have assisted many New Yorkers in developing and upgrading their work skills. This investment in our people is one that will strengthen our State's competitiveness globally. Providing high quality training programs is essential to ensuring our state's economic health and future.

We must continue to provide the necessary programs and funding that will assist New York's workforce to confidently transition into the new skills which technology demands in the traditional occupations. We also must help those who wish to upgrade their skills in order to keep pace with the rapidly changing workplace and global economy. We must also continue to fund programs that will help people transition from public assistance to strong workforce participants with the desire to progress in a career that will support a good quality of life.

The Catalog of Workforce Preparation Programs 2004 depicts over $1 billion in spending for the development of a strong, robust and talented workforce. The 2004 Catalog describes each program as well as provides a five-year history of the appropriations and identifies the eligible segment of the workforce for each program.

I hope you will still find the Catalog as useful and informative as in years past. If you have any questions, please feel free to contact the Commission at (518) 455-4865. You may also access the Catalog on the Assembly website at www.assembly.state.ny.us

Sincerely,

Joan Christensen
Chair

 Academic outcome is the number of enrollees reaching 5th grade and 8th grade reading and math levels in English and Spanish; Oral English Proficiency (ESL level); and GED (English and Spanish) for 1999-2001. In 2002 and thereon academic outcome for enrollee's grade levels was increased to 6th and 8th grades for reading and math in English and Spanish, thus resulting in lower numbers of inmates achieving academic benchmarks. GED 2002 test was a new test and it was administered to fewer inmates resulting in lower outcome data. Vocational outcome is the number of enrollees demonstrating entry level job skills (tied to "Dictionary of Occupational Titles").

* Includes various Federal Employment Service funding sources.

 Due to the Department's conversion to the One-Stop Operating System (OSOS), annual reporting statistics for this reporting period were either unavailable or understated due to transition.

+ Due to the inability to run batch processing until the fall of 2002, the 1,139,973 figure reported above does not accurately reflect the total number of DOES active applicants for fiscal year 2001. Batch processing updates the status of records from active to inactive to archive after a predetermined number of days in the system without activity. Because batch processing was not run, the total active applicants figure represents an accumulated number of all active job seekers in the OSOS system since implementation and, therefore, is inflated. In addition, this figure does not reflect ENROLLED customers, but are Active Applications in OSOS system.

¹ Total job seekers that received a staff assisted service. Note that effective July 1, 2002, the federal reporting definitions for the program were modified. As of 07.01.02, in NYS, a job seeker is not considered enrolled in the Employment Service Program until they have received a staff assisted service. In prior years, the number of enrolled represented all active applicants, whether or not they had received a staff assisted service. For comparability, we note that of the 1,139,973 active applicants reported for 2001, only 506,215 had received a staff assisted service (comparable to the 528,401 reported in the 2002 period). For PY 2003, participant and outcome data are from the Federal 9002 Report for period ending 6/30/04.

² Entered Employment Rate is a new outcome measure implemented beginning with job seekers registered as of 07.01.02. The Entered Employment Rate is defined: The number of registered job seekers who, in Quarter 1 or Quarter 2 following the registration quarter, earned wages from a new employer divided by the total number of registered job seekers minus the number of job seekers whose only wages earned in Quarter 1 or Quarter 2 following the registration were exclusively with the same employer from which wages were earned in the quarter prior to the registration quarter.

³ Employment retention rate is a new outcome measure implemented with job seekers registered as of 7/1/02, but not initially reported until the report period ending 3/31/04. The definition is: the number of registered job seekers who retain employment for two quarters after entering employment with a new employer in the first or second quarter following the registration quarter, divided by the total number of registered job seekers who entered employment with a new employer in the first or second quarter following the registration quarter.
