EMERGENCIES HAPPEN.

When calling 9 1 1
is not enough,
make sure you are prepared.

A special message from

DAVE McDONOUGH

When response time is crucial, give first responders the knowledge they need to help you before they arrive.

911 operators often lack an individual's specific location and medical information when an accident or emergency is reported.

Plan ahead for any emergency by signing up for Smart911, a free program that gives first responders life-saving information about you before they arrive.

Information you can choose to provide:

- + Specific address
- + Medical conditions
- + Vehicle information
- + Pet information
- + Disabilities
- + Emergency contacts
- + Current medications
- + Other occupants
