

Dear Neighbors,

My apologies, I am issuing a clarification to yesterday's newsletter. Preliminary findings from the National Weather Service, after surveying storm damage in Cortland County, show that the weather event residents experienced Wednesday was actually a severe thunderstorm with high winds-not a tornado. Tompkins County was not surveyed or reported as a possible site of a tornado. To get the latest updates on our local weather conditions, visit the National Weather Service Binghamton office, here.

In good health,

Anna Kelles, Ph.D.
